NEW JURY FOR MINE INQUEST

Attorney-General's Department Make Decision in Bellevue Case.

Premier Sifton and Attorney-general Mitchell yesterday afternoon declined to grant the request of the miners' representatives from Bellevue, for a special commission to investigate the mine disaster at Bellevue. Instead, the government, after recommending that a new jury be selected, and the investigation will proceed under the direction of the coronor, on January 3d.

The premier stated to the miners' representatives that the coronor's investigation was part of the criminal law, and had to proceed, and could not be superseded by a commission. If the miners desired any further investigation after the coronor's jury had concluded, they could come to the attorney-general's department. The appointment of a commission would then be considered. The mines at Bellevue will be closed down during the investigation, and will not be reopened until a special order has been issued by Provincial Mine Inspector Seeling.

Clement Stubbs, vice-president of district 18 of the United Mine workers, and W. J. Carter, local agent at Bellevue, together with their lawyer, H. A. Mackie, waited upon Premier Sifton and Attorney-general Mitchell yesterday afternoon, and the conference that followed resulted in the above announcement.

Premier Sifton also announced to the delegation that he would early consider the appointment of a commission to investigate the matter of mine regulation, in accordance with his announcement in the House. The miners' representatives are disappointed in the refusal of their request for a commission to investigate the Bellevue disaster. The union representatives feel that if there had been increased protection, the disaster at Bellevue, which killed 11 men, might have been avoided. The bills brought forward by Chas. O'Brien, the Socialist member, the disaster would never have occurred. They urged upon the premier that early steps be taken to provide for regulation along those lines.

Mr. Stubbs is emphatic in the declaration that if there had been separate traveling ways in the Bellevue mines, as provided in Mr. O'Brien's bill, many of the men killed in the disaster, would have been able to escape.

CHIEF LANCEY HAS CLUE TO BAD THIEF

Expect to Get the Man Who Robbed Alderman Mould's House.

Chief Lancey this morning informed the Capital that he had a clue to the person who robbed Alderman Mould's house of a watch and chain, bracelet and other articles of jewelry several weeks ago.

Yesterday while playing his trade the milkman discovered what appeared to be a small brass object sticking out of the snow in front of Mr. Mould's house. Chief Lancey found that it was the watch and chain which was stolen at the time the articles were stolen. Further investigation revealed the fact that this was all of the loot that had been left behind.

The police are of the opinion that the person who robbed the house threw all of the jewelry out of the window and that it became so buried in the snow that when he returned for it that night he was unable to find the watch and chain but secured the other articles.

The police are probing the case and feel confident that they will be in a position to order an arrest in the near future.

NO ACTION YET.
Up to today, no action had been taken by any of the banks implicated in the defense in the action taken by the province against them to secure the A. and G. V. bond money. Eight days of the twenty days allowed the banks in which to file the warrant has elapsed, but it is expected that some action will be taken next week, when solicitors from Montreal are expected to arrive in the city.

GREENWOOD'S RE-ELECTION.
London, Dec. 24.—It is understood that Hamor Greenwood will succeed Oswald Tarrington, who lost his seat at elections, as junior lord of the treasury. It is anticipated that Greenwood secured a sufficiently large vote in a Sunderland to hazard a re-election.

When this picture flashes upon the sight of many of the contractors and graders who labored on the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway near of Edmonton, they will remember the face. It is the face of a brown-eyed, tattered juvenile who for many months, while the grade of the line was being made, crept about the bridge builders on the Pembina River. The Superintendent of Delinquent Children found him, ragged and half-starved, morally and physically sound, hanging about the camps of the bridge builders on the Pembina River. The Superintendent took him to Edmonton, fixed him up with a bath and a suit of clothes, and turned him over to a big-hearted, well-to-do country merchant not far from Edmonton. Today he is one of the brightest and most promising youths in the province.

This Boy, With the Appealing Eyes, Once a Little Waif, Now in Home

Children's Aid Found Him, Took Care of Him and Then Placed Him in a Good Home—Many Other Human Interest Stories Could be Told of the Work They Do.

If you happen to pick up the report of the Superintendent of Neglected Children of Alberta, for the year 1909, just issued, you will find starting at you from the fly leaf of the booklet, the picture of a very pathetic little figure. It is the picture of a ten year old, very much neglected, juvenile, in whose particular case, the public is furnished with a concrete example of the work that the Superintendent of Neglected Children and his staff are doing in the way of bringing regeneration to many hundreds of delinquents and placing them in an environment that will make of them model citizens of Alberta.

The Capital reproduces the picture. The history of the little lad, who stares up at you from the print, is one of the most interesting of the human interest stories that the Superintendent gathers around him day after day.

The picture shows the youth as Mr. Chadwick first found him, in rags and tatters, after many months of wandering among the construction camps on the Grand Trunk Pacific west of Edmonton.

One chilly autumn day in 1909, the lad stumbled into the construction camp on the grade.

"Kin yuh gimme a job?" The big railway contractor, thus accosted, looked down in some surprise at the small youth, with the appealing brown eyes and the flashing smile of good nature.

"Where'd you come from, little feller?"

"Down the grade," was the sturdy response, as the boy pointed away east toward Edmonton.

"Yeh," the boy's tattered clothing and disheveled appearance bore evidence of the fact.

"That is something of the manner in which the little boy with the appealing eyes was wont to approach graders. He won his way into the hearts of the rough construction men, with his good natured smile, and willing ways, and incidentally won the right to exist among the camps, by his cheerful and uncomplaining way of doing odd jobs for everybody. After youth of intelligence. The re-generation had been accomplished. Today the boy is living a life of usefulness, and his parent of adoption is proud of him. His report, from school reads "Excellent." His manners are the manners of a thoroughbred. His adopted parent tells the superintendent that the boy is his right hand man in the store.

Picked from the gutter of a miserable existence, the boy is starting on the upward path of progress, and his talents and his capabilities have now the opportunity of development. He is a coming citizen.

That is only one story of a hundred that Mr. Chadwick can tell of his work. He is handling cases like that every day. Every week in the year, he picks some pathetic, neglected little bundle of humanity from the gutter and starts the work of regeneration.

Under what method that work of regeneration is carried on is best told in Mr. Chadwick's own words, as quoted from his report.

"No country in the world affords a better field for the solution of the problem of the dependent and delinquent child than does this province. Many people are to be found who are able and willing to receive as their own children those who are in need of homes. The Children's Aid Society of Winnipeg sent a large number of children to the province of Alberta last year, while the American and Jewish Societies for child protection and child immigration have found homes for some hundreds of children in Alberta."

"The difficulty is not in finding a home but in knowing that the home is the right one for the child, and in keeping in close touch with the home until such time as the conditions warrant the child's removal from the institution to the care of the foster parents to fulfill the conditions of the agreement."

"Children's Aid Societies have been organized in Calgary, Edmonton, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, and in the past year, and are doing excellent work in the carrying out of the objects of the Children's Protection Act."

"Calgary and Edmonton have agents in the field looking after the interests of abused and neglected children, and arrangements have been made in both cities for the care of children in need of the protection afforded by a Children's Society."

"Committees have been appointed in the smaller places with the idea

AS CHRISTMAS IS IN EDMONTON NOW

Weather Is Warmer Than It Has Been For Five Years Past
TOMORROW AND MONDAY
What Is Doing in the City on Sunday and Also on the Holiday

For the first time in five years, according to previous indications, Edmontonians will spend Christmas under ideal conditions. The weather is again warmer than it has been for several years, trade conditions are brisk and everything points to an ideal holiday. The only disadvantage of some of the being thrown open to those who are away from their friends and loved ones, thousands of presents are being distributed, and fast but not least the less fortunate little tots of the city will enjoy real Christmas trees which will be loaded down with gifts of every nature.

All the churches special services will be held on Sunday, both morning and evening, while on the evening entertainments of different nature will be held in several of the theatres.

For their holiday programmes the theatres have been making preparations for some time. The majority of the buildings will be adorned in a dress appropriate to the season and the offerings will be all that could be desired.

In Strathcona on Edmonton and Strathcona team will clash in a game of hockey, while at the Y.M.C.A. in this city several athletic events of different kinds will be pulled off.

Taking everything into consideration, there is nothing on the horizon at present which would indicate that other than an ideal Christmas will be spent by the citizens of Edmonton and district.

NIGHT WATCHMAN GIVES BOWELL LIE

Contradicts Ex-Collector of Customs in Inquiry Going on at Vancouver
SAYS HE WAS NOT DRUNK

Sensations Are Promised Before the Commission Concludes Its Search for Truth

Vancouver, Dec. 23.—At the federal investigation being conducted here into the Chinese immigration by justice Murphy, a straight fight is given to the recent explanation by Collector of Customs Bowell regarding the evidence of John McPherson, who was arrested on August 16th, 1909, and stated under oath that the night watchman John McPherson was drunk at the time, and was so found and that for his misconduct and disobedience McPherson had been carried before one of the deputy inspectors.

Late today McPherson under oath declared that Bowell's statement was wholly untrue. He, McPherson, was on duty last night, knew the Chinese escaped or landed. As for the charge of being drunk the first he knew of it was on reading Bowell's evidence in the newspapers. That he had now come to fully contradict.

Late evidence caused something of a sensation. Still other sensations are promised before this inquiry concludes.

OIL REALLY BEEN FOUND AT MORINVILLE FIELDS

Dominion Geologist Gives Assurance That Drills Are in Rock Formation That Indicates Oil in Large Quantities.

That oil has actually been discovered in limited quantities in the wells of the American-Canadian Oil Co., and that the drills are now in the formation that will ultimately produce a gusher, is the information that was obtained by the Capital this morning. The officials of the company are not saying anything for publication, but that they may have an announcement to make next month.

It was learned that a prominent geologist for the commission, in inspection of the oil wells at Morinville, and has given assurance that the drills are in the proper formation to produce a gusher, and that another few feet of drilling will produce oil in abundance.

Practically all of the oil claims filed upon at the land office have been taken up, over $3000 has been paid in by representatives of the oil company, and other interests which are said to include the Interurban Railway. Railway people have also taken up claims and paid rentals.

Out of a total of something like 250 claims filed, rentals have been paid on over 150, according to a statement from the land office this morning.

Some of the claims were allowed the chase yesterday, but it is expected that they will be re-taken today or next week, and the rentals paid.

TRIED TO SWIPE MAYOR'S CIGARS

But the Commissioners Got Fooled—And Mayor Was Buying Them a Christmas Tree

A deed of the darkest kind would have been pulled off at the city hall this morning had not Mayor Leach arrived on the spot just when he did. While His Worship, out of the goodness of his heart, was over on the market square, negotiating for the purchase of a Christmas tree, supposed to be coming in the afternoon, gentlemen were exercising their wits in an attempt to secure unto themselves, alone, a box of fine perfects which had been left at the office for the commissioners. They had just decided that the box should be surreptitiously secreted when the mayor walked in and not being desirous of being caught in the act, they threw a bluff by taking the box into his workshop and explaining that they had decided that the alone should taste those most excellent samples of the cigars' art.

The mayor accepted the gift with thanks and the other commissioners with chagrin written on every line of their countenances stole softly into their respective rooms to make a pretense of being busy over some matter and not to be seen by the energetic council committee some time prior to the dark ages.

G.T.P. BRANCH NOW NEAR COAL FIELDS

Practically all the contracts for the construction of the fifty mile branch line of the Grand Trunk Pacific that is to tap the coal fields of the main line, west of Edmonton, have been awarded by the railway company, and work will be started throughout the entire winter, by the graders in the big cuts.

It is a matter of right of way on the branch have already been cut, and several miles of grading have been completed.

The line is two large tunnels to be built on the line, one of which will be over 400 feet long, and the other over 200 feet. These will be constructed next summer. In the meantime work is to be carried on during the winter on several of the big cuts.

Work is being carried forward on the development of the coal fields which the line will tap, and yesterday a car load of supplies was shipped to the mines of the Pacific Coal Co.

EXPECT-A CLASH ON CHRISTMAS DAY

Everybody Has Premonition That Trouble Will Take Place in Winnipeg Car Strike

Winnipeg, Dec. 24.—With a temperature of between twenty and thirty below zero, the prospects are for a sharp Xmas.

What almost amounts to a general premonition appears to exist that the holiday will not pass without a serious affray between the striking carmen and strike-breakers. Until now the situation has been very quiet, barring one or two minor incidents on outlying lines where police protection has been sent. But a few broken heads and a pile of broken glass is the serious result of the strike to date.

The striking union men appear to realize that without public sympathy their case is lost, and there is none.

GET SETTLERS DURING 1911

Publicity Department of Province Will Not Pay So Much Attention to Exhibits

The efforts of the publicity department of the provincial government will be directed during the coming year chiefly towards directing immigration from ports of entry, according to a statement made this morning to the Capital by Hon. Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture, who has just returned from a business trip to Winnipeg.

The offices in Montreal, Toronto, and Winnipeg will still be maintained, but the chief efforts of the department will be to direct the lines of directing immigration, in view of the fact that there has been a slight curtailment in the amount to be expended this year.

In spite of the fact that this is supposed to be a quiet season, Mr. Marshall states that he finds settlers are still pouring into the province, and that the provincial publicity offices in Winnipeg, are as busy as ever.

During the fall an average of 75 persons per week have visited the offices in Winnipeg, and hundreds of enquiries are being received there, for locations in Alberta.

XMAS MESSAGES

LORD STRATHCONA
(Canadian Associated Press.)

London, Dec. 24.—The following message from Lord Strathcona will appear in tomorrow's Lloyd's Vocabularies.

"The peace and prosperity of the British Empire rests upon the solid foundation of love of liberty, veneration for justice and the restraining and ennobling influence of Christianity. The ambition of all the citizens of the Dominion of Canada is to build up a nation within the empire, whose people shall conform to best traditions of morality and justice. For all the blessings which this Christmas morning Canada is profoundly thankful and that she will arm from her home gatherings today prayers for King, Queen and Empire."

SIR WILFRID LAURIER
London, Dec. 24.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier has cabled the following Christmas greetings to the Daily Telegraph from Montreal:

"Canada cordially reciprocates the greeting of the Daily Telegraph. I hope the coming year will be one of prosperity for the whole Empire. Canada today meets the Christmas tide in a better financial position than ever before and looks forward with confidence to the year of the coronation. Canada sticks by the principle of British preference and hopes it will be extended throughout the Empire."

A CHRISTMAS EDITORIAL

This is the season, which comes but once a year, when every sane, healthy, clean-minded person should be happy. It is the one season which the habit and custom of twenty centuries or more bids us enjoy through the easiest channel of all by which to gain enjoyment—the radiation of love, good fellowship, sympathy, and the application of that highest form of Christian charity which commands us to think lightly of the faults of others and view in the kindest manner the virtues we know they own.

Christmas is the natural holiday. The Goths and Celts found it so two thousand years ago as the Christians do today. It is the day for the national impulses of kindness, the day when men and women get out of life what they put into it and when the children feel the world a good place to be in.

But in the midst of all the pleasure of a glad Christmas season it is well to remember that we cannot find unalloyed happiness for ourselves unless we are sure that others are happy. Christmas is a season not only for enjoyment but of responsibility. There are those of whom we know some, whose Christmas stockings will not bulge with presents and whose Christmas board will not groan with the weight of luxurious fare. To only know who these are makes us personally responsible for their happiness at Christmas time, and no warm hearts could enjoy the Christmas feeling to the full without some token of this responsibility.

There are those who, although they may be blessed with their share of this world's goods and may have the creature comforts which go a long way in the making of happiness, yet find themselves far from the scenes which they hold dear and from the faces which the Christmas memory brings back with painful vividness. To such as these it may be only a word that is needed, a handshake, or a smile to bring them out of a drear and desolate self-consciousness of isolation and into the charmed circle of comradeship.

These are the boys who have wandered far from home, who in the hurly-burly of the work-a-day world think little of, or almost forget, the old folks by the home fireside but who, when Christmas time comes round feel themselves Ishmaelites in a desert of discord. To on of these an invitation to join the family at Christmas dinner might be prized more highly than a purse of gold. There are the bachelor girls who have taken their chances for better or for worse amid new surroundings, and whose hearts fly back with an infinite yearning at the Christmas season to home circle and the happy days of yore. To these a little loosening of the bonds of conventionality, a little good-fellowship from members of their sex would be a gift prized above all things.

Then there are the old folks at home. A little filibuster, a little levity, a little license with the rollicking crowd will not forever damn the young man about town whose spirits rise as he is caught in the swirl of the holiday season. But, first of all, he owes it to the old folks at home to send a kind reminder. A letter to mother, to dear old dad, and a little present for the girls. The misanthropic morning after will not haunt so severely the chap who knows that his remembrance was on the centre table two or ten thousand miles away while he was tearing the lid off down town with the boys.

There are all these and a hundred and one other little duties of the Christmas time, but above all there is the duty to the world, to civilization and to yourself to throw dull care away, to cast off the bitter, the bickering, the shallow and the untrue, to lay aside for a while the "four-flush" armor and the "front" you carry in the battle with the business world, and for one little while be natural, brave and true—to yourself, your friends, your family circle and your surroundings.

This is the spirit that makes a Christmas that will glow with happiness like a cathedral in the night. To the man who has it it is as the sunshine of a summer's morn, soul-satisfying, priceless. To the man who has it not, this world is a scene of tragedy, a valley shrouded in gloom, a land steeped in tears and sown with the seed of unrequited pain, bringing no harvest but a poverty of mind, soul and spirit.

The philosophy of it all is the old time greeting: "A Merry Christmas."

THE COMMON SUPERSTITION OF THE EASTERNER

The common superstition of the dollar-grappling east that western hostility to the tariff is attributable to the fact that the west can never become a manufacturing country is due to receive a very rude jolt within the next few years.

The reports of the conservation commission show that practically all the timber worth mentioning in Canada today is in the north-west corner of the prairies or on the Pacific Coast.

Almost all the virgin soil that can be added to the wheat area of the Dominion is west and north of Winnipeg, and most of it west and north of Edmonton.

The biggest coal mines in the world are in the Crows Nest and Yellowhead passes. The largest iron deposits in Canada are in British Columbia.

The Panama Canal will place the Coast nearer the markets of the world than Toronto and natural conditions place the Pacific ports nearer the source of natural supply than Montreal.

Manufacturing, like all other lines of human activity, follows the line of least resistance. The easterners who believe they have the industrial enterprises of the Dominion corralled and require only a tariff to hold them may find that the west offers advantages which will beat them out and will permit manufacturing without a tariff.

JUST PARAGRAPHS

Lloyd George having triumphed in England, and the extinction of the peers being now only a matter of time, Canada will soon have in its senate the only useless appendage in the government institutions of the empire.

While the chiefs are turning over those fifties and thirties and such like to the Children's Aid the crowd passes to guess what fund Mr. Cushing would have put the anonymous donations to had they been sent to him.

Some ambidextrous liar in the red pump belt started the story, given that the farmers' delegation was financed by Jim Hill. If the story had been that the farmers were financing Jim Hill it would have fallen short of the whole truth only in the respect that it lacked the names of all the rest of the railways in America.

THE DESTINIES OF ENGLAND

Collier's (Ind.). Two Americans have recently exercised a clear influence on the immediate destinies of England. One is the late Henry George, the other is Joseph Fels. Much of the present land valuation and land tax agitation, which is the spearhead of the 1910 budget, is due to the gradual permeation of Henry George's ideas on taxation of land. And some of the concentration and immediacy of that agitation is due to Joseph Fels. For some years single taxers have been sowing the seed through the Kingdom. Such men as Crompton Davies and John Paul have been addressing small meetings in many places. Gradually the interest has increased and permanent groups of converts and believers have been formed in certain communities. They have won over the Lord Advocate of Scotland, Alexander Ure, to the cause of a progressive tax on land. Large audiences have listened to him. Eighteen months ago Joseph Fels began to grow busy in England. Fels is a Philadelphia Jew who makes Pils-Napcha. By it he has secured eight million dollars, much of which he believes he has stolen from the work in people. He calls himself a "robber." He has two master passions in life. One is to free his own people from the age-long persecution by establishing a colony in some safe and fertile spot; the other is the crusade against poverty. Single tax is to him a religion, and he stands ready to pour out his fortune in establishing it.

WHERE THEY ARE SLOW

(Great Falls Tribune).

The people of the United States are the most conservative in the world when it comes to changing the old order of things to which they are accustomed in their political affairs, and the most progressive when it comes to changing methods and tools for doing business. The manufacturer is never satisfied with his machinery, but is always looking for new machinery more efficient than his old.

ROYAL GEORGE HOTEL A MODERN INSTITUTION

New Hostelry on First Street Opens Monday Evening
—Replete With all Latest Improvements Which Make an Hotel up to Date Nowadays

In the Royal George hotel, which is to be opened on Monday, Dec. 26th, 1910, Edmonton will have another caravansary which can claim to be in every respect a modern hotel, in the hands of proprietors who know their business.

The proprietors of the new hotel, Messrs. Malin and McKernan, are well known hotel men, both in Edmonton and Strathcona, and their long connection with the hotel business gives them a standing with the travelling public which is a franchise of itself and which will go a long way in helping their new venture along the road to success. Thos. McKernan is a native of Strathcona, and was for years known as one of the leaders in the athletic life of the town and was one of the central figures of the hockey team there. Thos. Malin has been a resident of Edmonton for several years and has been connected with several hotels in the city for some time. Up until last July Messrs. Malin and McKernan were proprietors of the Durolmont hotel in Strathcona, selling out there to take up the larger enterprise of the Royal George.

From a business point of view, the Royal George hotel is ideally founded. On First street, within three minutes' walk of the C.N.R. and the G.T.P. depots and only a few steps from the post office and the main business centre of the city, with a fifteen-minute car service past the door, it has every advantage of a central location and proximity to the railway stations.

The building, which is the property of A. Crisall, is the largest and most costly on First street. Five stories high, it cost $75,000 over $100,000 for the building alone. The plan of the building is one which will give every facility for comfort and convenience.

Thomas Malin of the Royal George Hotel

In the basement is a large billiard room, a barber shop, smoking room, and complete clothes pressing and valet service detachment, and the outcome of money that has been spent on the planning to complete the conveniences is enough to alone furnish some of the hotels of the city a few years ago.

On the ground floor the designer has done his best. The main entrance which opens into the rotunda is a corridor surrounded by bevelled glass open to view on all sides, and leading from the street directly past the office to the main corridor. The finish of the interior is in plain white with Grecian columns and pilasters. The floors are terrazzo finish and throughout the entire building Asbestos fire-proof plaster is used.

The dining room, which is just behind the rotunda, is a vast, finished with hard maple and a picture of neatness and comfort. The kitchen is in a wing entirely by itself, and does not come under the main roof at all.

In the bar the expenditure has been lavish. The fixtures are massive with oak, hand carved, and set off by huge mirrors covering the entire side wall of the building.

The main staircase is broad and easy of ascent, well lighted and convenient. At the head of the stair is a spacious parlor looking out onto First street, luxuriously furnished and designed with a view to easy comfort. On the second floor up is another parlor, smaller but as complete in its appointments, a quiet nook for reading or letter writing, and commanding a beautiful view of the western section of the city.

On the top floor is something in the nature of an innovation which is bound to popularize the house. Half of the entire floor is divided into sample rooms, which will be at the service of the commercial men who become guests of the house. The rooms are large, beautifully lighted, and equipped with every facility for the display of goods. A high speed Otis elevator leads from the corridor to the sample rooms, and by a skillful arrangement of the plans of the house trunk and sample cases may be delivered at the rear entrance onto the baggage floor of the elevator and taken direct to the sample rooms or the guests rooms without coming into the main corridor at all. The Royal George will be the only hotel in the city having the sky-parlor sample room feature which permits commercial men to handle all their business without going outside the hotel at all and which eliminates all the usual bother of loading after samples on arrival or departure.

The Royal George has altogether 100 rooms for guests. Each is catered about in lavish abundance. The electric fixtures are a remarkable display of the brass founders' art. The plan provides for no dark rooms, and the suites are arranged so convenient, by or to be an invitation of themselves. There is a telephone and running water in every room, and each room has a ventilating flue of its own, independent of any other in the building. There are burglar alarms on every floor. The furniture is quainter oak, the chairs leather covered, the woodwork natural finish and the carpets a paragon of velvet luxury. A fire-proof and burglar-proof vault conveniently located on the second floor is at the service of the guests for storing valuables, and in fact nothing seems to have been omitted.

The Royal George has one other title to fame. It was built by day labor, the proprietor placing the plans in the hands of Marshall Hughes, a well-known contractor, who proceeded without consideration of a profit to execute the plans according to the designs of Archibald Hopkins who planned the building.

During the past two weeks the furnishings and fixtures have been busy and now see the finish of their work in sight. The furnishings, which are supplied by the Campbell Furniture Company, constitute alone an order of more than $30,000. By Monday evening everything will be in readiness. The first meal served in the new hotel will be dinner on Monday night.

The proprietors extend a cordial welcome.

Boy With Appealing Eyes

Of enlarging such committees to societies as the need arises. Fortunately, most of the committees so organized have not been called upon to do much active work in prosecution of parents or guardians for the neglect or abuse of children, their efforts as a rule being confined to the neglect and reporting on a possible foster home for children who have been taken over to the care of the department, by order of the court, or by parents or guardians who have proved unable or incompetent to provide for such children.

Preventive Measures

In cases of child neglect or cruelty, a warning from the local Children's Aid Society and committee or parents or guardians to the neglect or abuse of children, their efforts as a rule being confined to the neglect and reporting on a possible foster home for children who have been taken over to the care of the department, by order of the court, or by parents or guardians who have proved unable or incompetent to provide for such children.

In many cases of child neglect through poverty, work has been obtained for the parents and for the older children and in cases of sickness funds have been provided for the temporary relief of the family.

"Defective children present the most serious child problem that is being faced at the present time in Alberta. Fortunately, the number is very small, there being aside from deaf, dumb and blind children about twenty such children in the province.

"The parents of these children are, as a rule, too poor and too ignorant to take proper care of them. Among the cases coming to the attention of this department there are several cases of idiosyncrasy, two or three of criminality, as well as other forms of mental and physical degeneracy, demanding the highest form of medical skill and expert knowledge.

Probation

"The best work accomplished by the department since its inception is the preventive work carried on through the co-operation of the various police departments of the towns and cities of the province, the N. W. M. Police and the parents of the children involved.

"When a child makes its first break over the border into delinquency, the parent is requested to call with the child at the local office of the chief of police or Children's Aid Society and talk things over. Home conditions, studies and companionships are discussed and the suggestion made that the child be put on probation for an indefinite time to report either to the Chief of Police, or to some competent party who has the interest of the child at heart.

"The child signs an Agreement with the Police, and the parent signs a consent to his child's reporting, and the Probation Officer, if used, he too attaches his name to the agreement to help keep the child on the right track.

"The parent is then supplied with a number of cards showing a full week for report on behavior, and time retired each day. These are countersigned by the probation officer and returned to the office in Edmonton each week.

"In the event of a series of good weeks, a letter of congratulation is sent to the child, and in the event of bad records, a letter of regret and censure is forwarded.

"When the parents give their co-operation to this plan, probation is the most successful way of handling the borderland on delinquency yet discovered.

This plan puts within the power of the probation officer the supervision of the home, the breaking up of law companionship and the reforming of bad habits. It gives him an opportunity to come in close contact with the child at his most impressionable time, and to impress him with an influence that he will carry for life.

"Probation is useless in cases of hardened habitual offenders. They regard it in the same light as 'suspended sentence," and fail to report to their officer promptly.

"Care and common sense have to be used in placing children on probation, in order that only first offenders or borderers on delinquency may have its advantage.

"Over four hundred children have been dealt with by this plan during the last year, and only twenty of them were taken before the courts of the province for second offences.

Home Finding

"A good family home is far better for a homeless child than an institution. Physical health, industrial training, normal social environment, rooted affections and virtues, access to the avenues of success are some of the conditions which are offered by the normal home and which are anchors that hold such children to the possibility of good citizenship in later life.

"Investigation, careful record and thorough supervision are the foundations of this work. The investigation is made by first asking the parties desiring to receive a child to make a statement of their ability to provide for such a child, and their reasons or motives for so doing.

"A blank form is sent to such persons on which is recorded the church relationship, the size of farm or property, their distance from school and railroad station, occupation, number and ages of persons in the family, and of hired help, and whether the child is the subject of infirmity, and the family in every way or not.

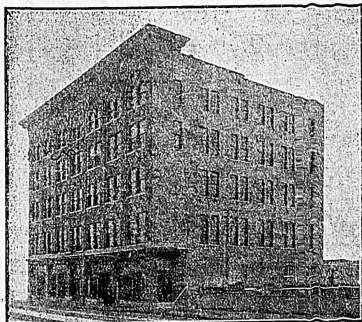

"The investigation is carried further by reports sent to at least three other responsible parties, who must vouch for the character and ability of the applicant.

"The third step is the visit of some one from the department, whose duty it is to verify impressions, seek out sources of information and report fully on the conditions found in the home.

"The investigation is continued by visits of supervision at unstated periods and by written reports which are sent in, either by the pastor or physician of the family, once every three or four months.

"The general public is little aware of the immense amount of work and care necessary for the proper placing of a child in a foster home. The investigations into the conditions of the homes and the motives of the applicants for the receiving of a child, frequently reveal the lowest types of avaricious natures."

"About twenty per cent of the children placed are misfits, and have to be handled the second or sometimes the third and fourth time, before a suitable home is found. This entails much work and careful study of the child is made, in order that its peculiar trait may be discovered and watched over until it has become normal."

Peace River, a Northern Paradise

The Report of the British Columbia Government Surveyors on the Country East of the Mountains and West of the Alberta Line—
It Is a Good Country for Settlers

Victoria, Dec. 24.—A report upon survey work done during the past summer in the Peace River country has just been submitted to Surveyor-General McKay by Messrs. Hermon and Burnell of Vancouver, who were engaged by the Provincial Government. The party was out from May 10 to September 29 and within that time they explored with great or less thoroughness, some four thousand miles of territory. Besides giving a general account of the country traversed, they made careful observations as to soil and climatic conditions so that the information collected will be of considerable value to intending settlers.

It is not improbable that the government may decide on surveying parties may not go so far inland during the next two or three seasons. There is plenty of unexplored land nearer to settled districts which can probably be opened up with greater advantage as the province. Hitherto it has been the custom for surveyors to a large extent to follow the river, but the district in which they wished to labor for the summer. This plan has done no harm as the whole province must eventually be completely surveyed, but there is growing up a feeling that better immediate results may be secured by starting from given centres close to civilization and making the surveys continuous. Once the land has been charted, it has a tendency to invite the settler, and widely scattered settlements tend to raise serious problems in connection with roads and markets. Moreover, the Peace River country presents an especial difficulty in that almost no care is taken to establish communications with Vancouver and Victoria, its trade may go to Edmonton, a result that would not be viewed with complacency by the British Columbia mercantile classes.

The section of the country explored by Messrs. Hermon and Burnell is that lying in the Peace River district between the Crooked and Parsnip Rivers along the eastern bank of those rivers. The Crooked River, they say, is rightly named. It averages about twenty-five feet in width, with many shallow sand bars. The Indians regard the last two weeks in May as the best time for travelling on it. The country on the east side is undulating, covered with scrub spruce averaging about eight inches, with some balsam and cottonwood and small jackpine and aspen.

It is stated a mile is being surveyed from Summit Lake to Red Rock, a distance of about thirty miles, taking in two miles of country on each side of the river. There are jackpine flats in places covered with a sandy soil, and along the river banks are narrow strips of country where the soil is better, growing grass in places, but mostly covered with taller and cottonwood. These strips vary from fifty to 200 feet in width. The general elevation is from 2300 to 2800 feet above sea level.

At Fort McLeod the surveyors found that there are about ninety-eight Indians left of the Stickeen, who burn and trade here, and they are living off fat. They are meat eating and hunt all the year round, consequently the big game is pretty well cleared out. The beaver and small fur animals are also getting scarce for the same reason. The streams and lakes, however, abound with trout and chum which keeps the Indians from actual starvation.

From here the party got their first view of the Rocky Mountains, showing up on the east side of the Parsnip River.

The Hudson Bay factor grows some very good vegetables at the fort although they were small this year from frequent frost.

An extended account of their travels is given by the surveyors, saying that they had sometimes pretty hard going but fortunately met with no serious mishaps. The worst thing that happened to them was that their cache on the east side of the Parsnip River was robbed by Indians. As a result of their experience they advise that parties going into this country or as far north as the Finlay Rapids, should return by the following the Peace River to Edmonton, as this is the cheaper and quicker way. Also Petersonburg canoes should be taken as the dugout cottonwood canoes available there at present are expensive, slow to handle, and liable to split at any time.

The seasons according to the Hudson Bay records," continues the report, "are rather severe around McLeod and the Parsnip Valley, McLeod Lake freezing up about the first of November and the ice staying until the beginning of May, the average snowfall during that time being about five feet. The summer frosts occur frequently. This summer the leaves began to change, on the top of the Hudson Bay potatoes being frozen off about the middle of August.

The summer weather while we were there was ideal, the nights being cool, the days clear and bright, the hottest days were in the first week in July, when the thermometer registered 85 in the shade for three days.

The coldest night was in the August 22 at the Finlay Rapids, when we had 10 degrees of frost in the valley with fresh snow on the mountain tops lasting two or three days.

The average temperature from June 20 to July 1 was 55 degrees at night and 70 in the day time, including four nights when we had frost, the coldest being 5 degrees on the night of June 25.

In July the average night temperature was 40 degrees, the daily temperature being 75; there being three nights when there was frost between the 1st and 8th, 4 degrees on July 1 being the coldest.

In August 40 degrees was the average nightly temperature, four nights of frost after August 12, the coldest being 10 degrees on the 23rd. Thirty-five degrees was the average in September, with frost during twelve nights, the coldest night being on the 20th, with 10 degrees of frost, 62 degrees being the average in the day time.

Queneau seems to be the most satisfactory place to outfit, the supplies purchased this year being from the Hudson Bay Co., they being satisfactory in every way and handling them with your men makes them noticeably cheaper than if they were purchased in Fort McLeod, or other posts further away.

We take the liberty of advising you that should you intend sending parties in to that district next year, what you instruct them to do is of great importance, in order that they may order special canoes from Petersonburg as it takes time to get any canoe made to order, and it also takes time to get them in from Astoria unless you pay especially high freight.

Parties should be at Gimcoke Portage by May 15. The rainfall seems light; we had one day's rain in June, three days in July, four days in August, three days in September.

The country, especially the Crooked River, would be a paradise for anglers, the waters teeming with trout which are very gamey, especially the rainbow variety in the Crooked River which will rise to a fly as quickly as one can be cast. They are not large, but average about a pound and a half in weight.

The eland grow much larger, but they are not so gamey, neither are the grayling nor the Arctic trout, as they are called, which are numerous in the Parsnip River and are excellent eating; they will also take a fly.

There are quite a few bears of the grizzly, silver tip, black and brown species to be had for anyone who understands hunting. The moose, caribou and deer are scarce a present, but as the young eland and willow grows up in the burned country, they doubtless they will come in from the territory along the Peace River, where they are reported as numerous at present.

The eland are one or two good bearing quarts ledge on the Peace River Pass also some coal seams which are all stated.

There are also seams of lignite to be seen throughout the country and plenty of float of the same character, but they are of no value. There is a good quartz ledge reported on the Winkler Creek about twenty miles from the mouth of the Peace River.

We pointed none of the streams and creeks, but got nothing except in the Mission where the gold was too fine to be of any value.

Finally, in summing up the country explored, we may state that the general character of the soil is of a light sandy description with a gravel subsoil. Along the river it is richer, being more of a sandy loam, in some places two feet deep with a gravel subsoil.

The average width of the Crooked River Valley on the east side is seven miles; of Park River Valley about two and a half miles, and of Parsnip Valley about twelve miles.

The average elevation of the country is about 2200 feet above sea level, the country along the Crooked River is mild, undulating forest country, in the Parsnip Valley, it is flat benches.

The timber is chiefly spruce averaging about eight inches, jack pine about ten inches, balsam about ten inches, white birch, an occasional fir is seen, while cottonwood, alder, willow and poplar are very thick, especially along the banks of the rivers. The cottonwood growing from 30 to 36 inches, and these trees are the ones the Indians use for smoking their canoes.

We would suggest that if you intend completing the exploration of the Peace River country you place a reserve on both sides of the Finlay river as far north as Fort Graham, which could be explored at the same time and we beg to apply for the exploring of the country on the east side of the same.

The total number of acres explored was approximately 20,000. The total number of miles traversed was 4,000.

An English bird of sport, but is familiar to shooters in the east, where it is shot as it comes fighting to water holes to drink. Its flight is something like that of a pigeon, with very swift undulations, and in its case again, as in that of the Virginian mosquito hawk, it is said that those who have acquired the knack can kill it with comparative certainty, which is the despair of the novice.

After all, perhaps our pleasant explaining downwards must still be given the highest marks for difficulty, for we hear of no one who presumes to say that he has discovered any infallible knack by which this most perplexing and apparently simple feat can be brought off with any degree of certainty.

ABOUT TOWN

The trial of the two teamsters, who are charged with wilfully destroying fences which had been strung across a trail leading to the city, will be held on Wednesday of next week. The men have been released on bail.

Miss H. Wier, formerly of the Y.W.C.A. staff in this city, narrowly escaped serious injury while driving to Lethbridge in an automobile a few days ago. The automobile struck a rut and swerving to one side hurled Miss Wier to the ground rendering her unconscious for several hours. Her many friends in this city, however, will be glad to learn that she has recovered from the shock.

The Committee in charge of the Pleasant Sunday afternoon meeting held at the Orpheum Theatre at 4 o'clock, have arranged a specially attractive musical programme for Sunday next. Christmas carols, vocal and instrumental solos, with selections by the Orchestra and Christmas recitations, will fill the bill. Mr. P. G. Mitchell and Mr. H. W. Hogue will be the soloists. In addition to the above a Moving Picture Film of an interesting view will be thrown upon the screen. Dr. H. Smith will make for admission, but a collection will be taken.

After a desperate attempt on the part of the Carlists to impede the progress of the bill the Cortes yesterday passed the "Padlock bill." This is a notable victory for Premier Canalejas, of Spain.
